This book is the result of personal sacrifice, drama and even humor from the front line of the caregiving experience. The text is a personal account from the forefront of caregiving packed with stories and solid information I assembled from mother and other Alzheimer's patient and caregiver experiences, doctor visits and personal research that you will not find anywhere else. I know. I looked. I share the whole and sometimes difficult truths as my personal mission to lighten the burden for the millions who face this disease.
