THE TRIBE THAT LOST ITS HEAD by Nicholas Monsarrat /FIRST EDITION Nicholas Monsarrat Here for your delectation is the SPECTACULAR AND RARE-----THE TRIBE THAT LOST ITS HEAD by Nicholas Monsarrat.....Ritual circumcision.....Monsarrat has built his story of an imaginary African tribe and island in revolt through the interaction of character and incident, of small things twisted to precipitate large, of British Colonialism suffering the disease of advancing years and British yellow journalism the disease of brash sensationalism, of the color bar, and of mounting terrorism building to a horrifying climax. The island is Pharamaul, off the southwest coast of Africa; the British operate it as a protectorate -- and expect from the returning young chieftain the kind of cooperation his forebears had given. But Dimamaula is Oxford trained and is shocked by the awareness of his people's backwardness into giving the Press the excuse they seek for playing up the shortcomings of the colonial officers. That there is a modicum of truth in the charges they distort makes denial difficult- and one small thing leads to another until the smoldering unrest breaks into open and violent and bloody revolt- and the island is aflame with nationalism overlaid by primitivism. The key characters are adroitly drawn- types, perhaps, but vitally portrayed so that one knows them intimately, suffers with them in their agonies of indecision, heartbreak and disillusionment. There's a poignant love story.....This is the softcover stated POCKET FIRST EDITION FROM DECEMBER 1957. Other than need for tape where glue has dried up, the book (no dj) is in excellent reading condition. There are no rips, tears, markings, etc. (see photo). Note: All books listed as FIRST EDITIONS are stated by the publisher in words or number lines--or--only stated editions that include only the publisher and publication date. Check my feedback to see that I sell exactly as I describe. So bid now for this magnificent, impossible-to-find LITERARY COLLECTIBLE.
